

About the Institute

The Scottish Universities Insight Institute promotes collaboration and engagement between researchers and wider society. The Institute hosts Knowledge Exchange activity led by our partner universities - Aberdeen, Dundee, Edinburgh, St Andrews, Stirling and Strathclyde.

From March 2013 the Insight Institute will be based in the newly-refurbished Collins Gallery at Strathclyde University. The Gallery, located in central Glasgow, is a flexible space which has been purpose-designed to promote interaction and dialogue.

Programmes of Knowledge Exchange

The Institute supports programmes that draw in wide-ranging research knowledge from Scotland's top research-led universities and their international academic collaborators, together with wider multi-sector perspectives. Programmes should:

- address substantial issues that face Scotland and the wider world;
- take a multi-disciplinary approach and include the input of policy-maker and/or practitioner knowledge;
- marshal the existing knowledge of participants and deploy their experience in fresh ways;
- be productively addressed through a schedule of activities during a period of up to 5 months; and
- have the capacity to extend knowledge and inform policy and/or practice.

Organising teams must include members employed at 2 of SUII's partner universities. Academics from other Scottish universities may participate but not lead programmes.
